DETAILED ACTION

Claim Rejections - 35 USC § 103

1. The following is a quotation of 35 U.S.C. 103(a) which forms the basis for all obviousness rejections set forth in this Office action:

(a) A patent may not be obtained though the invention is not identically disclosed or described as set forth in section 102 of this title, if the differences between the subject matter sought to be patented and the prior art are such that the subject matter as a whole would have been obvious at the time the invention was made to a person having ordinary skill in the art to which said subject matter pertains. Patentability shall not be negated by the manner in which the invention was made.

2. Claims 1-5 are rejected under 35 U.S.C. 103(a) as being unpatentable over Kawashima (JP 2000-69759) or Chou (US 3707636).

Kawashima discloses multiple piezoelectric transformers (131, 132, and 133) connected in series (abstract). However, Kawashima fails to disclose the specifics of the connection.

However, the structure of the piezoelectric transformer is disclosed and showed and therefore, anticipated.

Chou discloses a first and second piezoelectric transformers (1, 2) which comprises primary electrodes (11, 12 and 21, 22 respectively) and a secondary electrodes (13, 23), and in which an output is obtained from the secondary electrodes by applying an AC power supply to the primary electrodes. However, Chou fails to disclose the piezoelectric transformers being connected in series.

Since the structure of the piezoelectric transformer is old and known in the art, it is the Examiner's position that configuring the electrical connection in series to obtain a specific output would have obvious to one ordinary skill in the art as necessitated by the specific requirements of a particular application. Therefore, it would have been obvious at the time of the invention was made to connect the first input electrode in series with the first input electrode of the second piezoelectric transformer (or the third piezoelectric transformer) depending on the desired output of the system. In the instant case, the arrangement of a plurality of piezoelectric transformers would provide the power required to drive a load and would provide a balanced voltage.

Regarding claim 2, Chou discloses in figure 1 the direction of the arrows a and b, which identify the polarization of the piezoelectric (opposite to each other).

Regarding claim 3, figure 4 combines three transformers having different polarizations.

Regarding claims 4 and 5, Chou discloses the load connected between the secondary electrode and the secondary electrode of the second transformer.

Conclusion

3. The prior art made of record and not relied upon is considered pertinent to applicant's disclosure. See PTO-892.
